Moving Picture Party for College Girls

Last night twenty-five girls of the school contingent were guests of Mrs. L. R. Chazal, who entertained in honor of her daughter, Miss Onie Chazal, and nieces, Misses Marie and Dorothy Hickman, who are home for the holidays. The occasion offered the opportunity for the first meeting of many of the high school girls and college girls since last summer, and that alone was a great treat, but Mrs. Chazal had in store additional pleasures for her guests.

They were invited to arrive at 7:30 o'clock and by 8 all were at the Temple witnessing the pictures, chaperoned by Mrs. Chazal, Mrs. Hickman and Mrs. D. S. Woodrow. From the Temple they returned to the home of the hostess and enjoyed dancing, the music being furnished by a Victrola.

The rooms were all beautifully decorated, the Christmas features being used exclusively. The dining room was particularly lovely. The dining table was centered with a small Christmas tree prettily decorated and around its base were many packages tied with holly ribbon, one end of which extended to the edge of the table. After the guests had relished the ice cream, cake and candies they were told to pull a ribbon and on getting the packages and opening them, which occasioned much merriment, pretty and useful souvenirs were found—trinkets, vanity cases, etc.

Those present to enjoy the evening with Mrs. Chazal and the three lovely guests of honor were the following: Misses Avalie Edwards, Emma and Sidney Perry, Stella and Nina Camp, Theo and Gladys Wallis, Mary Harriet Livingston, Elizabeth Davis, Hester and Marian Dewey, Adele Ax of Baltimore, Eunice Ellis, Lillian Chaplain, Savannah, Caroline Harriss, Maude McIntosh, Sidney Harold, Rexie Todd, Blair Woodrow, Martha Kate Rentz, Hanney Ellis and Blanch Whaley.

ON CHRISTMAS

(Maud B. Little, in Florida Review)

Now once again comes Christmas time
In every land, in every clime
The bells ring out a merry chime
The holly gleams with ruddy glow
And o'er us swings the mistletoe.
On Christmas.

Up North, the chilling breezes blight
With frosty breath, the flowers bright
Jack Frost, the artist, in his flight
Has traced some etchings here and there
And scattered snowflakes everywhere.
On Christmas.

Down in the Southland, far away
The birds are singing blithe and gay.
And then anon, soft zephyrs play
At hide and seek, amid the pine
The graceful palm, or columbine.
On Christmas.

'Tis one glad season, far and near,
When friend meets friend and kindred dear
And all respond with hearty cheer,
As hearts and hands unite once more
Around the yule log, as of yore.
On Christmas.
